

On Friday June 19, a group of fifteen artists are coming together at the Tape Modern to exhibit their best pieces. One of the most whimsically utilitarian ones is by German artist Matze Görig, who is showing his "Superhammer" series. Here, we highlight three of his pieces: The "Flexible Fun", the "Cubic-Oriental Art Hammer" and the "Suicide Hammer".

The Flexible Fun (pictured above) features a hammerhead that resembles a wooden rolling pin, softly nestled in a pink and gray satin box. Bonus: A couple of nails have been inserted in the box's lid for your hammering pleasure.

Next up, the Cubic-Oriental-Art Hammer rests in a wonderful blue, white and silver-lined box; if you hold the hammer up to your eye you can view Asian art through a peephole in one of the sides.

The grungy Suicide Hammer features a gilded razorblade inside its unclenched head as well as hinges to seal the weaponry up again. Lying inside a black and grey coffin-like box, it really does remind one of darker times.

Doors open at 19:00; but the afterparty goes 'til late.

EXHIBITION NO.10 @ TAPE MODERN

17/06/2009

TEXT: JUDITH BUSCH

TAGS FOR THIS ARTICLE:

Art, Design, Exhibition, Lifestyle, Matze Görig, Superhammer, Tape Club, Tape Modern

MORE ABOUT: ART

WHEN WORLDS COLLIDE - THE COLLABORATION ISSUE

Come together - Part one

David Shrigley

COLUMNS

TODAY WE LIKE: Pulp dioramas

LIFESTYLE

Geoff Barrow opens gallery

FEATURES

A second life for typography

LATEST ARTICLES FROM

see all

Judith Busch

TODAY WE LIKE: Bio Mapping

You know that feeling of excitement and nervousness that you get when you enter a new city, wher...

Fender guitars by Sonic Youth

As announced on their Twitter account, Sonic Youth guitar gods Thurston Moore and Lee Ranaldo ha...

Alexander Wang Fall 09

Young American designer Alexander Wang recently debuted his Fall 09 Accessories Collection. For...

Review of the International Design Festival Berlin "Same same, but different!" was the creative motto

Tape Modern
Heidestraße.14
10557, S-HBF

of this year's International Design Festival...

The top 10 sneaker stores worldwide
London based website AskMen.com, one of the top portals for gents according to Time magazine, re...

TOP

SHARE | PRINT | COMMENTS

OPEN

EVENTS NEWS

see all

17/06/2009 Exhibition No.10 @ Tape Modern

On Friday June 19, a group of fifteen artists are coming together at the Tape Modern to exhibit their best pieces. One of the most whimsically utilitarian ones is by German artist Matze Görig, who is showing his "Superhammer" series. Here, we highlight three of his pieces: The "Flexible Fun", t...

10/06/2009 Banksy announces Bristol show

Rumor had it that mysterious street artist Banksy, who's known for his amazing street art, famous fans and copious art books all over the place, was to open a summer show sometime soon – we didn't know when and where. Now here are the hard facts: there will be a show and it is opening...

25/05/2009 Vivienne Westwood @ Latitude Festival 2009

This years' Latitude Festival (16th - 19th of July) will be extra special due to the appearance of Vivienne Westwood. Punk's high fashion priestess is not performing with a new band - although that might have been interesting - but reading extracts from her Active Resistance to Propaganda, a th...